

Key facts about the residents of Pennsylvania District 7¹

Medicaid plays an important role in many people's lives. Nearly 200,000 District residents rely on Medicaid for health care and protection against unaffordable medical bills. They include nearly 75,000 children and 18,000 adults age 65 and older.²

Many people with incomes too high for Medicaid buy their own health insurance on Pennie.com.

Nearly 25,000 District residents rely on Penny for health insurance, most of whom use enhanced premium tax credits to help purchase coverage. If Congress lets those credits expire after 2025, District residents' health insurance costs will rise. For example:

- A 40-year-old man earning $31,000 a year would see his monthly premiums more than double, rising from $58 to $153. His annual health insurance costs would thus shoot up by more than $1,000.
- Health insurance costs would nearly quadruple for a 60-year-old couple earning $82,000, rising from $581 to $2,275 a month. The couple's annual premium costs would go up by a staggering $20,000.

More than 40,000 District families use the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) to help pay grocery bills. These families include:³

- Children. Almost 20,000 of the District's SNAP families have minor children living at home.
- Older adults. More than a third of the District's SNAP families include adults in their 60s or older.
- People with disabilities. Half of the District families helped by SNAP include people with disabilities.
- Low-wage workers. Almost nine in 10 District families with SNAP have bread-earners who work but do not make enough money to feed their families without help.⁴

² The exact figures, according to the Census Bureau, were 171,958 District residents who were covered through Medicaid in 2023, including 74,984 children and 17,966 older adults.

³ These proportions add up to more than 100%, because a single family can have members in multiple categories. For example, a SNAP family with a disabled father, a working mother, and a child would count as a family with a child, a family that includes a person with disabilities, and a family with a low-wage worker.

⁴ The exact figures, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, were 40,011 District families who used SNAP to help pay food costs, including 19,470 families with children, 14,883 families with at least one adult age 60 or older, 19,455 families with at least one person with disabilities, and 34,735 families with one or more workers.
